A Family Owned and Operated Business for Over 30 Years!

In 1988, Bob Reiner, President, and Michelle Reiner, CEO, opened the doors of Joshen Paper & Packaging to service a single customer, a local supermarket chain in Cleveland, Ohio, with packaging supplies. Since then, Joshen Paper & Packaging has been delivering thousands of products to thousands of businesses; opening distribution centers across the United States.

Expanding this family-owned enterprise, Bob and Michelle Reiner's son, Josh, is now COO. Their other son, Jordan, has found his niche in sales. Daughter, Jennifer, has worked at Joshen in many capacities since she is 18 years old. Currently a busy mother of three, she still finds time to work in the business.

Joshen's newest website, www.joshenzone.com, features an extensive product catalogue that's easy to read and easy to use. The company has a huge division of janitorial and sanitation supplies, eco-friendly products, labels, office supplies, as well as disposables.

Joshen has also grown its will-call area, accessed from the side of their building, where customers can stop in and shop in our store and get personal help and ideas from our staff. Customers can make their purchases and have their car loaded up without incurring a delivery charge. In addition to competitive pricing, this is another way Joshen services their customers and helps them cut costs.

Tired of Having to Create Purchase Orders to a Multitude of Suppliers?

In today's economy, companies are getting "squeezed" and challenged to drive down supply product and distribution costs. On one side, customers want supply products for less cost, with better service. At the same time companies are pressured to reduce inventory and distribution costs. This becomes more complicated when a company may not have the resources, systems capabilities and freight volumes that other competitors have to drive continuous cost reductions and service improvements.

As companies are being forced to move to just-in-time inventory models, there may not always be enough on-hand inventory in their warehouse to satisfy orders. Joshen Paper has the experience and resources to integrate data from multiple systems to facilitate decisions by maximizing product on-hand inventory; allowing our customers to focus on growing and managing their core business. Joshen Paper is the expert in distribution program coordination. When implemented, Joshen's programs can significantly reduce warehouse storage and labor costs while still meeting high fill rate requirements of your locations and customers. Joshen maintains the supply product order history in our database to insure maximum inventory levels to maintain your high fill rate requirements.
