

ALLISON
ROSE FOUNDATION

Dedicated to changing the lives of food allergy families through education, awareness, research and advocacy, the Allison Rose Foundation (ARF) strives to arm families with a comprehensive food allergy support system. ARF, a 501(c)3, was formed in memory of Allison Rose Suhy to prevent other families from experiencing the tragedy and untimely food allergy death of a child or young adult.

As food allergy children evolve through their stages of life, their supporting communities change making food allergy education crucial. Severe food allergies continue to be misunderstood. If proper education is put in place from a young age, food allergy sufferers, their support systems, and the general population, will be properly informed and prepared to understand, recognize and effectively manage a severe food allergy and life threatening reaction.

On May 2, ARF officially kicked off Food Allergy: Educate and Empower to high school students at Cuyahoga Heights High School. Having the opportunity to engage with these teens and young adults, share Allison's story and show them the severity of food allergies and how they can make a difference and save lives was inspirational. ARF is so grateful to the school's administration, staff and impressive students, and the best educational team, including Cleveland Clinic allergist and Code Ana USA founder, Dr. Alice Hoyt, Cuyahoga Heights Fire Department IAFF Local 702 and Valley View Fire Department. The Foundation plans to expand its reach next school year and educate even more so that food allergy education is better understood and lives may be saved.
